It is with great sadness that we report the passing of Sandy Wilhelm, our friend and neighbour on Carter Lane. Unfortunately many of you probably did not know Sandy well because her long battle with cancer meant she could not spend nearly as much time as she wanted on Carter Lane. During the past several years her visits were brief but she always loved Isthmus Bay and used it as a serene and tranquil place where she could almost forget about her health issues. Despite the ravages of cancer she always had a great wit and the twinkle in her eyes had to be seen to be believed. On her last visit to our cottage she was riding her motorized scooter and complaining long and hard about the bumps in the road, suggesting we should have it paved with a highway 401-like surface. The twinkle was very evident during this conversation.

For those of you who would like to read more about Sandy or pass on your own condolences the link below will get you there.
